

Two Recruits Praise McKeon As Trainer

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C., July 23 (AP) — Two fledgling Marines testified today S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon slapped them in angry exasperation just before leading their platoon on the April 8 death march.

One of them, Pfc. Gerald C. Langone Jr. of New Hyde Park, N. Y., said McKeon also challenged him to a fistfight but that he did not accept the dare.

But both the young Marines said McKeon's slaps were light and produced no pain. And both defended him as a top-notch trainer of recruits at this 5,000-acre base.

Earlier, said Langone, a medium height youth with short, dark, wavy hair. "I thought he was the best on the island, and I think most of the men agreed."

"Your feeling of pride and affection for Sgt. McKeon was one of the things that made you the entire platoon had?" asked defense lawyer Emile Zola Berman on cross-examination.

"Yes, Sir," replied Langone. "Still have—" Berman said, raising his placid voice to a shout. "Yes, sir," said Langone, crisply and without a trace of hesitation.

Thus the pair joined a half dozen other of McKeon's former recruits in expressing from the witness stand at his court-martial continued admiration for the man accused of recklessly endangering their lives in a tyrannical night march.

Langone, 20, said he was summoned to McKeon's room just before the Marine drill instructor marched 74 members of Platoon 71 into Ribbon Creek where six of them drowned.

"Sgt. McKeon and I had a little argument," Langone testified. "When Sgt. McKeon opened the door he told me to come in swinging. I said 'No, sir.' Then Sgt. McKeon pushed me in the face one time, then gave me a very light slap the next time."

Earlier, in a day of "gloating off" by members of Platoon 71, Langone said McKeon had told him: "If you don't get squared away you're liable to go into combat and come back in a pine coffin. Then all your Guinea (sic) friends can mourn over you."

Langone, as a recruit section leader in the platoon, was supposed to exercise a program of discipline as outlined by the drill instructor. Earlier, strapping 19-year-old Pvt. John M. Maloof said he also was summoned to McKeon's room and slapped. Maloof displayed no rancor over the incident.

In terms suggestive of a direct appeal for forgiveness from his former sergeant, Maloof testified: "We all felt we let him down. He did everything for us and he got a knife in his back."

Other survivors of Platoon 71 also testified as the second week of the court-martial got underway. McDonald had charged that the industry "forced the shutdown — for ulterior reasons" and attacked the industry's pricing policies. He said the rise in steel prices since 1947 was nearly three times greater than the rise in the industry's costs for labor and materials.

The companies' statement countered that while labor costs now are triple those of 1940, and have advanced an average 7.6 per cent a year, steel price increases have averaged only 5.4 per cent a year during the same period.

The company move for new talks was said to have taken McDonald by surprise. There was speculation in Pittsburgh that the companies might be prepared either to revise their basic proposals or to modify it within the framework of the five-year pact they say is necessary for industry "stability."

The union rejected that term as too long and disputed management's claim the proposal would give workers 17-23 cents hourly gain in the first year; 14 cents hourly was the union estimate, and USW leaders said this was "too little."

Basically, those were the opposing positions when the old contract expired at midnight June 30.

Leaders Object To Ruling

HARRISBURG, July 23 (AP) — The Republican state leadership said today that the state Justice Department's ruling giving the state Highways Department responsibility for maintaining the Pennsylvania Turnpike was "a cold-blooded patronage grab."

George I. Bloom, Republican state chairman, criticized a week-end opinion by Atty. Gen. Cohen, which transferred to the Highways Department much of the responsibility that has been exercised by the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission in operating the toll road.

Bloom said in a statement that Cohen's ruling was a move to allow "the Democratic patronage machine to take over 500 turnpike jobs in a presidential year," adding: "It is odd that the attorney general should come up with such an opinion at such an opportune time after the Turnpike Commission starting with the last Democratic state administration has functioned as a separate agency that the Legislature intended it to be."

State Quota Increases

HARRISBURG, July 23 (AP) — Pennsylvania's September draft quota was fixed today by state selective service headquarters at 1,157 men, all 22 years or older. The figure compares with 1,021 men for August.

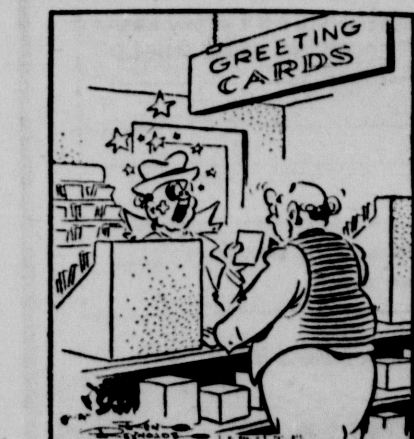

Congress Changes Bedloe To Liberty Island

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP) — Congress today renamed "Liberty Island" the bit of land on which the Statue of Liberty stands. The House acted by unanimous consent, approving a joint resolution the Senate had adopted.

Present Name

Now known as Bedloe's Island, from the name of a 17th century owner, Isaac Bedloe, the 12-acre isle in New York Harbor also has had a variety of other names, such as Great Oyster, Minnassals and Love. But the name Liberty Island was widely used in the 1860s when funds were being raised for the pedestal of the statue.

Neighbors Retain Lawyer For Woman

By Paul Carlson

DINGMANS FERRY — Neighbors of elderly Hazel Harms yesterday retained an attorney to see if something can't be done to help her retain her property from which she has been evicted.

The woman, who lost her home of 23 years for non-payment of some $200 in taxes, has been living in a tent for the last week. The tent has been set up alongside the road near her former home between Shepherd's and Albright's corners here.

Louis Hinsey, who has been spearheading the drive to help Hazel Harms, said last night that he and other neighbors have retained Atty. Karl Wagner of Millford to represent her.

As of last night, Hinsey said, donations to help the women totaled $38. Individual contributions ranged from $1 to $5, he added.

"The way people feel up here," Hinsey said further, "we won't have any trouble raising money to help her."

However, an entirely different story was outlined last night by Atty. Roger Woljten, counsel for Lawrence Hauser of Bristol, the new owner of the property.

"She was given all possible notice," the attorney stressed. Woljten said she presumably received a tax bill when taxes were assessed in 1951. After she failed to pay them, her home was advertised for sale in 1953.

"During the winter and before we started ejectment action," said Woljten, "we sent two letters to her by registered mail and she failed to make any reply to them."

Later, Sheriff Otto Winkler Jr. served Hazel Harms with the ejectment complaint, the lawyer said further. However, he alleged that the woman never attempted to present her defense.

"Then the sheriff took about two months in executing a writ of possession, visiting her about a half-dozen times to warn her that he would have to put her out," said the attorney.

"She has had since 1951 to take steps to retain her property and has done nothing," Hauser's counsel noted. "Local government can only function if it is empowered to collect taxes."

Woljten also observed that his client decided to allow the elderly woman to remain in the home during the winter months. In April and May, she was again given notice to leave the property, but made no effort to move, he added.

On July 14, Sheriff Winkler reportedly moved her furniture to the edge of the roadway. However, Hazel Harms immediately made it clear she will resist any efforts to force her to move.

Since then, she has reportedly turned down offers to stay in nearby homes and has been living in a tent, given to her by Hinsey and his wife, operators of Sally and Lou's Restaurant, Cole's Corner.

The Weather

Stassen Booms Herter To Replace Nixon On Ticket

RECONSTRUCTION of the three flood-battered bridges at Bartonsville was started yesterday by Herbert R. Imbt, local contractor. Here a shovel scoops away dirt and rock preparatory to rebuilding the bridge at the Tannersville end of the Route 611 detour. Work will be started later on another span at the Bartonsville end of the detour, and on a third on Route 12 at Bartonsville. A highway official said last night it's hoped that the project will be completed by early Fall, unless the steel strike interferes with work. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

'Shortway' Proponent Denies Charge

HARRISBURG, July 23 (AP) — A proponent of the Keystone Shortway today denied that politics is linked in any way to the proposed cross state highway.

Z. H. Confair, president of the Keystone Shortway Assn., said "this is not a Democratic project but a cooperative project between Democrats and Republicans."

His statement came in reply to U. S. Rep. Simpson (R-Pa.) who said at Huntingdon over the weekend that construction of the shortway, to run from Sharon to Stroudsburg, could bankrupt the present turnpike system.

Description

Simpson also described the shortway proposal as a "particularly disquieting example of boondoggling by the Democratic administration in Harrisburg."

"I note that in describing Simpson's district the story reporting his speech left out Snyder and Union counties," Confair commented.

"I am sure that his constituents in those counties, which will benefit by the shortway, don't consider it a boondoggle and resent his statement."

Confair pointed out that legislation authorizing construction of the shortway by the Turnpike Commission was supported in the state Legislature last year by both Republicans and Democrats.

Republican

Emphasizing that he himself is a Republican and was a GOP candidate for office recently, Confair said, "I admire the governor and Highways Secretary Lawler for their backing of this highway in a depressed area."

The association is pressing for substitution of the shortway into the interstate system in place of U. S. 6. They want it to be built with federal funds as a limited access, toll free road.

Work Begins On Route 611 Bridges At Bartonsville

WORK BEGAN YESTERDAY on one of the three bridges at Bartonsville which were washed out by the flood, and a highway official expressed the hope that all could be reconstructed by early fall.

Acting District Engineer Edwin Confair, of Harrisburg, said the local work yesterday morning. As a result, a shovel was engaged during the day in removing rock and dirt preparatory to rebuilding the flood-battered span at the Tannersville end of the Route 611 detour. Another bridge will be rebuilt at the Bartonsville end of the Route 611 detour. While the third will be erected on Route 12 at Bartonsville.

Hopeful

Greenwald said the highway department is hoping that the work will be completed "in the time allotted." However, he added, much depends upon the availability of steel, even though the spans will be largely constructed of pre-stressed concrete.

Greenwald indicated that, if all goes well, the bridges will probably be finished by "early fall."

Meanwhile, Claude E. Metzgar, Monroe County assistant maintenance superintendent, reported that an estimated 35 miles of road have undergone resurfacing or reconstruction in the county under the flood reconstruction program.

Swimmer Drowns At Beachlake

HONESDALE, July 23 (AP) — A swimmer from West Englewood, N. J., drowned today while heading for a raft 100 yards from shore at nearby Beachlake.

He was George L. Graves, 19, Thomas Aloisio of the Bronx, N. Y., said Graves got under and summoned aid. The body was recovered by Frank Pilon, a New York City detective also vacationing in the area.

Competition At Show

HARRISBURG, July 23 (AP) — Competition in displays of Christmas trees will be held for the first time this year at the annual Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg, Jan. 14-18.

Jack Pine, recruitment chairman, presided at the meeting in Red Cross headquarters. It was the first meeting of the newly organized committee. LeRoy Mikes, Red Cross blood chairman, and Mrs. Ida Kunkle, executive secretary, represented the county chapter.

Eisenhower Plays Host To Leaders

PANAMA, July 23 (AP) — President Eisenhower, saying he is feeling "better every day," talked separately with 11 presidents or presidents-elect of American republics today. It was his busiest round of conferences since his June 9 inaugural operation.

Beaming and gay, Eisenhower was host to the Latin-American leaders at the U. S. Embassy. He met with each for half an hour or less.

Eisenhower stayed over for an extra day on his good will visit to Panama in order to hold the intimate farewell conferences.

Eisenhower told one of his guests, President-elect Herman Siles Zuazo of Bolivia, that "on this trip I have been improving every day. I've felt better every day."

The Bolivian asked Eisenhower, who came here as a convalescent, about his health and got that reply.

Late Hour

The U. S. President, in a tan summer suit and wearing a paisley necktie, looked fit despite the fact he was up late last night at a reception for Panama President Ricardo Arias and his wife. Eisenhower limited himself to part of a glass of champagne and took no food.

On Saturday he was overheard to remark: "I haven't much strength, but I keep going."

The extra day here permitted Eisenhower to have personal talks with all of the 18 other leaders who joined yesterday in signing the Declaration of Panama affirming the Western Hemisphere's determination to stand firm against alien totalitarian forces.

Eisenhower then proposed creation of a commission on human problems to offer suggestions in economic, financial, social and technical fields, including beneficial use of atomic energy for industry.

Each of the American republics would nominate a representative on the commission, which would help realize the goal set forth in the Panama Declaration of raising hemisphere living standards.

Eisenhower's proposal appeared to be meeting with an excellent reception. Five of the presidents who came out of the meetings with Eisenhower told reporters they gave his proposal their "full support."

Worker Perishes In Fall At Phillipsburg

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., July 23 (AP) — An electrical worker was killed today when he fell 45 feet from a crane at the plant of Warren Foundry and Pipe Corp.

Police identified the victim as Francis Biletti, 51, of Route 24, Washington, who was employed by the electrical firm H. N. Crowder Jr. & Co., of Easton, Pa.

Biletti was working on electrical installations for a new company building when the accident occurred.

Members of the committee in addition to Chairman Pine are Mrs. James Coleman, Mrs. Horace Westbrook, Mrs. Warren Mikes, Mrs. Byrd McDowell, Rev. Harold G. Durkin, Rev. William Foote, Rev. Harold C. Eaton, Joseph Small, William Hawn, James Gould, Richard Altomero, John F. Hill, William (Bud) Peterson, Kurt Wimer, Joseph Webster, Earl Palmer and Thomas Cullen. A Barrett Township representative will be announced later.

White House Declares No Responsibility

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP) — President Eisenhower's special assistant on disarmament, Harold E. Stassen, proposed today that Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts be nominated to replace Vice President Richard Nixon as Eisenhower's running mate this fall.

The White House promptly disavowed the suggestion. Stassen's proposal, which exploded like a bombshell in the pre-convention Republican camp, brought a statement from Eisenhower's press secretary in Panama that the President had told Stassen it was "obvious that he could not make such a statement as a member of the President's official family."

It also brought a demand from a score of Republican Congress members that Stassen resign his Cabinet-level job.

Statement

Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, issued this two-sentence statement after consulting with the President about the Stassen proposal, made at a Washington news conference:

"Mr. Stassen did inform the President on Friday of his decision to make such a statement and also to inform the vice president of it before issuing it.

The President pointed out to Mr. Stassen that while he had every right as an individual to make any statement he so desired, it was also equally obvious that he could not make such a statement as a member of the President's official family."

While Stassen had told the news conference he was not acting "as a personal representative" of the President, he denied he was a "renegade" from the Eisenhower team or that his statement would endanger his job.

He said he intended to work for Herter's nomination "in loyalty to President Eisenhower."

After Hagerty's statement, Stassen said through an aide that he had "nothing further to say tonight."

"He just wants to repeat a sentence he had in his press release this afternoon," thus: "I wish to make it clear that I, of course, do not take this action as a personal representative of President Eisenhower."

An associate of Stassen's said he understood Stassen did not interpret Hagerty's remarks as meaning he would have to resign his White House post for endorsing Herter.

Declined

Stassen himself declined all requests for another talk with reporters, but in his earlier session with them he made it clear that he did not believe he would be either fired or forced to resign because of his move in openly endorsing Herter.

A reporter asked Stassen directly if he believed he had "compromised your position" as a special White House assistant on disarmament by plumping for Herter. Stassen replied:

"No, I feel not. I feel that in this matter—in a matter of this importance and nature—it is tremendously important that the precise position of the President should be communicated only by the President, that it should not be interpreted from statements that Leonard Hall makes or that I make or that others may make."

"I think it is of such a basic nature that really the public and the press should take their interpretation only from the President."

Milton Elected President Of Johns Hopkins

BALTIMORE, July 23 (AP) — Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of the President, today was elected eighth president of Johns Hopkins University.

Carlyle Barton, president of the Hopkins board of trustees, said Dr. Eisenhower's acceptance of the invitation was received following a special meeting of the trustees this afternoon.

Eisenhower, former president of Pennsylvania State University, will take office this fall. He succeeds Dr. Lowell J. Reed, retiring as president after serving on the faculty and administration for 38 years.

Committee

When Dwight D. Eisenhower was elected president, he appointed his brother, Milton, Nelson A. Rockefeller and Dr. Arthur Fleming as a special committee to advise him on all problems of government organization and management. Dr. Eisenhower continues to serve in this capacity.

He accompanied the President to the conference of Western Hemisphere leaders in Panama. Barton said when Dr. Eisenhower was reached by telephone in Panama late today, he accepted and said, "I shall come with enthusiasm. I look forward to close cooperation with the Johns Hopkins faculties, alumni, students and friends of the university."

He indicated he would assume his new duties as soon as he could complete his responsibilities at Penn. State. He resigned as president of the Pennsylvania Institution last month after serving from July 1, 1950.

Dr. Eisenhower, 56, was president of his alma mater, Kansas beginning July 1, 1943.

She made it plain that she dresses — when she dresses at all — to please men.

HOME IS WHERE THE HEART IS, and Mrs. Hazel Harms is now holding open house, literally as well as figuratively, along the roadside above Dingmans Ferry amid the jumble of possessions evicted from her home for non-payment of taxes. Old friends and a crowd of curious new ones are made welcome as Mrs. Harms, refusing all offers of hospitality, is determined to stick it out. She is shown, center, rear, with Ranger Jack O'Neil, whose help as a guide was enlisted, and Bobby Westbrook, Daily Record Social Editor.

Hazel Harms Pleasant Hostess

By BOBBY WESTBROOK
(Social Editor)

DINGMANS FERRY—No queen could have received her visitors more graciously at a garden party, than Mrs. Hazel Harms, crawling out of a pup tent held up by a stick, received a photographer and reporter in the dead of night in the lonely countryside above this village.

The moon furnished the only light for the strange interview, and heaped up piles of furniture covered with rain and dew-wet carpets formed the background. Mrs. Harms' manners could not have been more cordial, however, if the lights had been crystal chandeliers, the furniture arranged by an interior decorator.

It was only through a miracle, and the help of Jack O'Neil, a forest ranger, that the newspaper team had found her "home" at all. The moon shone dimly through streaks of clouds, the ground fog twisted and swirled along the back roads, and no lights showed in the few houses along the road.

Moving slowly, scanning the roadside for the furniture which would indicate where Mrs. Hazel Harms had been evicted from her home, the expedition was making no progress until they enlisted the help of Ranger O'Neil, encountered by chance. Even then they almost passed the jumble at the roadside, before realizing it.

Uncertain of their reception at this lonely hour and under these conditions, the inquiring reporters approached warily. They need not have worried.

Mrs. Harms had "retired" but had no objection to getting up to be interviewed. It was "getting up," too, since she was sleeping on the ground, protected from beneath by a canvas, a feather bed and two inner-spring mattresses, and from above by a pup tent, held up by a stick.

"However you'll notice that I also have sheets," she pointed out proudly, "initialed sheets if you please."

Mrs. Harms who was evicted from her home for non-payment of taxes, has been living there since Tuesday. The first night was the most difficult, since then she was without a tent or any covering, and was ill besides.

Now, however, with the tent for sleeping, an oil-can for cooking water, and friends who bring her a hot meal a day, she's managing very well, she said. "And the tent

BARTONSVILLE—East Stroudsburg Exchange Club last night adopted a resolution favoring the proposed "Shortway" construction from Sharon to Stroudsburg.

The club unanimously backed the project and approved its construction.

Action took place during a meeting of the club here at Bartonsville Hotel.

Check

The organization also presented $300 to the East Stroudsburg Little League so the latter can repair damage from last August's flood.

A committee was also named to handle the appearance of the famed Marine Corps Band at East Stroudsburg Junior High School on Sept. 19.

Claude Heller and Grady Moore were named co-chairmen, while Harry Crouse, Elwood Huffman and Don Summa were also placed on the committee.

Tickets for the concert may be purchased from members of the committee. Only a limited number are available.

Plan Check
Pointing out that many dog owners have not obtained their 1956 permits, Hazen disclosed he plans to start a thorough neighborhood check in every section of the county, starting next week. He will be assisted by several county residents who know the area and local conditions.

Meanwhile, local police reiterated that dog owners allowing their pets to run unrestricted will be responsible for any damage they may cause.

Departs From Hospital

ANGOLA, Ind., July 23—Walter Giesey, 32, secretary to Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh, was released today from Cameron Hospital where he was treated for minor injuries after a head-on auto crash late yesterday.

Map Shows Design Of Interchange

ACCOMPANYING map shows the design of the interchange which would connect the proposed Thruway with U. S. Route 611 north of Stroudsburg. The Thruway would relieve the serious traffic congestion that exists in the Stroudsburgs.

The map was prepared by Gannett, Fleming, Corddry and Carpenter Inc., consulting engineers hired by the State Highway Department. Their report was turned over to the department and the U. S. Bureau of Roads for a review. Four different Thruway routes were studied and one of them recommended.

This map is part of the recommended route. Dark black lines show how the Thruway will connect with Route 611 (L. R. 168).

Double Line
Doubleline in upper left of map is the present Route 611. The heavier of the two black lines is the recommended Thruway route. It cuts across the road (broken lines) leading down to the CLU Park, then continues east to a point where it crosses Pocono Creek and Bridge St. (L. R. 450-50) at extreme right.

Small dark line bearing right off Route 611 (upper left) is a new highway which will carry

He couldn't remember how he stayed afloat until he was hauled in, apparently unhurt except for a "terrible headache."

Employees Of Ronson To Draw Food

SURPLUS FOODS today will be distributed to employees of the three East Stroudsburg plants of the Ronson Corp., it was announced last night by Charles E. Beyer, grand lodge representative of the International Association of Machinists.

Beyer said the surplus commodities will be distributed beginning at 9 a.m. today at the Sarah St. entrance of the courthouse. The distribution will continue into the late hours, he added.

However, general distribution to other persons will not take place until Wednesday, county commissioners stressed. A distribution schedule to persons other than Ronson workers will be announced later in The Daily Record.

Direction
Beyer urged employees who have not yet returned to work to pick up their allotments during the day so that employees who have already returned to their jobs can be handled more rapidly during the late afternoon.

Members of local IAM Lodge 1724 have participated in setting up the county's distribution program for the last week, Beyer said. Work parties of union members helped with the loading and unloading of surplus foods picked up at Clarks Summit and Jim Thorpe.

On Friday and Saturday, IAM members packaged 5,100 pounds of rice for distribution this week, he added.

A committee of some 30 union workers will also assist in the actual distribution, Beyer said further. The women will handle the paper work involved, while the men will distribute the food to recipients.

Beyer said Company G, National Guard, provided the truck to pick up the rice at Clarks Summit last week.

eastbound traffic destined for Stroudsburg and which will not use the Thruway. It will descend a five percent grade to the underpass beneath the Thruway and then ascend a five percent grade to rejoin existing Route 611.

This alignment is suggested so that no dangerous weaving or cross-traffic situation can develop. The engineers said in their report.

Westbound traffic from Stroudsburg is carried on the existing road through the western terminus of the Thruway. Due to the ramp spilling into the existing channel, the course of Pocono Creek must be changed and slope protection provided, the report added.

Additional maps showing other proposed interchanges will be published in future editions of The Daily Record.

Ronson Scheduled To Sign Contract With Union Friday

A NEW TWO-YEAR contract between the Ronson Corp. and the International Association of Machinists will be signed Friday afternoon, it was announced last night by Charles E. Beyer, IAM grand lodge representative.

The new pact, affecting some 750 workers at the three East Stroudsburg plants, was accepted "almost unanimously" last Friday by members of Lodge 1724. Agreement was reached after Ronson employees remained on strike for seven weeks.

Place
Beyer said the signing will take place at the Ronson plant. Both the company and union negotiating committees are expected to be present, he added.

Meanwhile, the union spokesman said there will be a meeting of the local union policy committee at 7:30 p. m., tomorrow at the CLU Club. On Friday, first shift workers will attend a membership meeting at 4:15 p. m., at the East Stroudsburg High School, while second shift workers will attend a similar session at 2:30 p. m., at the CLU Club.

Three Local Union Barbers Visit Camp

FIFTEEN union barbers paid a visit to Hickory Run State Park Sunday to give haircuts to the crippled children attending Camp Daddy Allen.

The barbers, including three from Stroudsburg, are affiliated with the Pennsylvania State Association of Journeymen Barbers, Hairdressers and Cosmetologists. Members of Stroudsburg Local 559 who went were Don Summa, his son, Frank, and Russell Swingle.

Lunch
After giving haircuts to about two-thirds of the 115 youngsters, the barbers had lunch with the campers.

Swingle, secretary-treasurer of the Stroudsburg local, said local union barbers will join others throughout the state in donating a day's tips and wages during the week of Aug. 20 for work among crippled children.

Changing Times Calls For Increase In Postal Rates To Reduce Deficit

Should the taxpayers continue meeting the postage bills of business firms which ought to be paying their own way?

This seems to be the gist of arguments put forth in Congress for an increase in postage rates. The House of Representatives has approved the bill and the Senate has held hearings on the proposal, the aim of which is to eliminate or at least reduce the postal service's annual deficit of $500,000,000.

Proponents of the bill maintain the Post Office Department should be self-supporting, just as any private business. Those who are in opposition argue that the government should continue subsidizing companies, both large and small, and let the department go on operating in the red.

There was a time, years ago, when this largely was a rural nation with few roads and no telephones, radios or television sets. Americans were much more dependent on the postal service then than now. For many, it was their only means of communication; for long periods perhaps their only contact with the outside world.

Of course, publishers used the mails to get papers and magazines to most of their readers. The public was kept informed, in the only way possible then, through a federal subsidy in the nature of low postal rates which were, and still are, passed on to the subscriber. (These rates have been boosted substantially twice in recent years.)

The taxpayer public is less dependent on the mails today because of other means of communication and transportation. Carrying personal letters from place to place long since has ceased to be the practical function of the Post Office. Three-fourths of the mail now comes from business firms. To a remarkable degree, the department today, properly, is a service to business. But this makes the question of costs and revenues paramount. There no longer is any reason why the department should be a burden on the taxpayers.

The House has recognized this fact by passing the bill to increase postage rates. We hope the Senate does likewise so the postal service can get out of the red.

Survey Shows What Business, Industry Are Looking For In College Graduates

A month has passed since colleges and universities turned their annual crop of graduates out into the world to seek fame and fortune.

We venture to say almost all of the thousands of young men and women who are now earning their own livelihood for the first time have learned more about the real demands of today's life in the last month than they did in all four years of under-graduate study.

Knowledge acquired in the classroom is most essential in finding success in this complex world. Without our colleges and universities, progress would be slow; in fact, it would be next to impossible to develop many of the technical skills so necessary today.

But there is no substitute for practical experience as the 1956 graduate has already learned. He must get out into the field of his chosen profession before he can put his "book larnin'" to the real test. It takes the hard knocks of real life to polish off the rough spots and to bring out the best talents in the individual.

Just what are business and industry looking for in college graduates? one might ask. In a recent report by the Detroit Employer Opinion Survey, results show industry looks first toward a man who is well rounded and understands the social and human aspects of his job.

Qualifications sought ranked in the following order:

1. Competence and performance.
2. Initiative and imagination.
3. Promise of ability to get along with people generally and particularly with fellow employees and subordinates.
4. A good attitude toward one's job, toward the company and toward people generally.
5. Ability to make decisions.
6. Skill in leadership.
7. Ability to communicate clearly and forcibly.
8. A broad educational background.
9. A well developed and rich personality.
10. A specialized training.

U. S. Leaders For Three Decades Resisted Any Understanding Of Marxism-Leninism

It can now be established by a wealth of detail that the essential reason for the failure of the Western countries to grasp what Soviet Russia was doing to them during the entire period of Stalin's rule (1924 - 1953) has been that the ruling men of these countries, including our own, resisted any understanding of Marxism - Leninism and therefore had no conception as to the motivation of the Russian leadership. Stalin's great power was derived from the headship of the churchlike organization, to which he acceded in 1922. As such, he did not claim infallibility; he insisted upon it.

Without understanding that, every detail of conduct is without meaning. The leadership of Soviet Russia pursues Marxism-Leninism orthodoxy, and the depth of the orthodoxy can be measured by the present quarrel over the down-grading of Stalin. For what appears most clearly in that is that after more than three decades of Stalin, the cult of personality only displayed itself on the surface; the basic belief of Soviet people anywhere is in Marxism - Leninism which is in Marxism - Leninism which the American Marxist theoretician, Howard Selsam, in his "Handbook of Philosophy," has stated so succinctly that it ought to be understandable even by those who were sold on the original Marshall Plan and believed that money buys everything, including friendship, but could not realize the potent force of a belief.

Selsam says: "... Man, a part of nature and its highest product, changes and controls nature by means of tools and thereby compels the forces of nature to serve his ends..."

In that one sentence lies the whole of the Marxist concept of the world and life and man and the progress of human history. Politicians, seeking a way to get along with the Kremlin, dodge the fundamental fact that those in the Kremlin have their own job to do which is to convert the entire human race to their system of life which is based on dialectical materialism and rejects other concepts wholly.

Lenin wrote: "The roots of modern religion are deeply embedded in the social oppression of the working masses, and in their apparently complete helplessness before the blind forces of capitalism, which every day and every hour cause a thousand times more horrible suffering and torture for ordinary working folk than are caused by exceptional events such as war, earthquakes, etc."

That is what they believe. In this country, we have gone astray because we have assumed that what the Marxists really wanted to do was to abolish private property. If that is all that they were interested in doing, it would not have been too difficult to get along with them. The British nationalized 20 percent of their economy and many Americans who in this country are most vehement about private property objected to any criticism of the British for their socialism. In fact, it was American financial assistance which sustained the British Labour government on its socialistic road. And even in our own country, we have pledged the future of power to the atom, a wholly socialistic enterprise which makes the present quarrel between public and private power ridiculous. The Marxist demands more than the abolition of private property. He believes that it is historically inevitable that the next stage of advanced human society is the Marxist stage, which in our terms means the abolition of our traditions, our religion, our particular type of family system, as well as private property.

It is, of course, possible to make a temporary deal with any country, but we must not be surprised if the other country interprets the deal in terms of its own morals. Lenin, writing on the "fundamental law of revolution," said:

"... It is not sufficient for revolution that the exploited and oppressed masses understand the impossibility of living in the old way and demand changes; for the revolution it is necessary that the exploiters should not be able to live and rule in the old way. Only when the 'lower classes' do not want the old and when the 'upper classes' cannot continue in the old way then only can the revolution be victorious..."

This means that a revolution can only follow a national crisis and it is the function of the Kremlin to bring on a national crisis in every country. Its propaganda is nearly everywhere most successful among those who are regarded as "the upper classes."

tion is not far off. You know we can vote for any party at the General Election.

OWEN C. DAILEY

Dear Sir:

I would like to have someone explain just what interest officials have in the other parts of Monroe County that are more important than they are in Northern Stroud Township.

The reason I would like to know is that the bridges and highways, especially on Route 90 from the Pine Brook and Smiley's Bridge to Route 196 over the railroad, have been closed to the people all winter and summer.

We on the west side of Brodheads Creek have to travel 10 miles farther to get to Anomolink by way of East Stroudsburg. It isn't fit to travel by way of Stokes Mill Bridge.

The Highway Dept. has spent enough at Stokes Mill to oil and gravel it and it still is a disgrace the shape it is in. There seems to be something wrong now that the money has been spent on a nice new bridge at Broad Street to Fifth and Main Streets on Route 90, then no place to go but jam up traffic in both towns.

There had better be something done now that the General Ele-

Traveling Joys Vary With Children Along

"Hey, Pop... the next time you see a gas station, let's stop!"

Many are the articles suggesting the joys of traveling with the children. You selfish old folks who hanker for a week of quiet, leaving your bevy of eager young minds at home with nothing to be eager about but who killed the bad guy on TV—for shame! One gentleman wrote of buying a large multi-passenger bus, outfitting it with bunks, cookstoves and doubtless a safe for the vacation money—and touring the whole of North America with his brood of eight tots.

It was educational. "Hey Pop... listen, I mean it. The next filling station we gotta stop..." With a flock of eight free loaders, even staying put is educational. Traveling about the continent could hardly be less so. The gentleman recommended that chores be assigned. Judy should red pencil the road map, lest a load of eager minds find itself on the wrong route. "Hey POP..."

Another small child was admonished to speak up in favor of scenic wonders along the way. And another was in charge of crayons, puzzles and story-telling. "Look, Pop, I know it's the Mammoth Cave but the next gas station you see..."

A less endowed family circle squared itself with their measly two offspring by equipping the station wagon with air mattresses, ice box and those same old crayons. Kids have to be entertained, it seems, whether they can draw for sour apples. And away they sped toward Eagle Pass, past the Alamo and the Gulf Coast. Destination Disneyland.

Leaving an eager mind placidly munching hot dogs while his elders speed toward the next motel is frowned on. But now and then this happens. One little girl (of a large family) hid in a waste basket in a washroom, unmissed for hours while brothers and sisters busily colored their picture books in the back seat. But alert police apprehended the unalert parents and she was happily restored to her crayons.

"Hey, Pappa, you going to be sorry..."

Seriously, if you have children and will travel, take them with you. Little blighters get awfully lonely without you, might burn down the garage, be saucy to the sifter or run up $36 in long distance calls to Grandma out in Des Moines while you are selfishly vacationing alone.

"There's a gas station, Pop! Now I can get some ice cream!"

For his seventh birthday, Johnny received a shiny new bicycle, with strict warnings that he ride it only with extra care. A neighbor found him at the corner a few mornings later, forlornly gazing at the bike's chain which had come off the sprocket.

The neighbor effected the necessary repairs, smearing his new suit with mud in the process. "There you are, Johnny," he announced, conscious of having performed his good deed for the day. "Now that you're seven, you'll soon be able to fix loose chains like that yourself."

"Shucks!" said Johnny. "I can do it faster than you—but I don't like to get my hands dirty."

Democrats Increase Tempo Of Attack On Eisenhower

Washington, July 22—The Democrats are stepping up their political fire on President Eisenhower.

Latest maneuver is a harsh letter that has been sent him by Senator John McClellan (D., Ark.), chairman of the special committee which was set up to investigate charges of "arrogant" lobbying on the natural gas bill that the President vetoed for this reason.

The letter bluntly asks the President to produce his proof that "highly questionable activities" were responsible for passage of this legislation.

McClellan sharply asserts that so far the Senate probers have been unable to obtain any "supporting evidence" regarding this explosive accusation from either the White House staff or the Budget Bureau.

The Budget Bureau is credited by McClellan with writing the President's caustic veto that precipitated the investigation. Significantly, McClellan disapproval of Senator Styles Bridges, President with the knowledge and N. H. ranking Republican on the special committee and chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee.

Both Bridges and McClellan voted for the vetoed bill, which would have barred the Federal Power Commission from regulating natural gas in interstate commerce.

Senator Francis Case (R., S. D.) abruptly injected the lobbying issue into the final phase of this bitter legislative battle with the surprise announcement that an oil company representative had offered him a $25,000 campaign contribution. Despite the ensuing furor, the Senate approved the bill.

But the President rejected it because of the lobbying charges. He stressed that while he favored the measure, he was compelled to refuse acceptance under the circumstances.

Crux of this blistering veto message, which led to the special Senate investigation, is as follows:

"Since the passage of this bill a body of evidence has accumulated indicating that private persons, apparently representing only a very small segment of a great and vital industry, have been seeking to further their own interests by highly questionable activities. These include efforts that I deem to be so arrogant and so much in defiance of acceptable standards of propriety, as to risk creating doubt among the American people concerning the integrity of governmental processes."

This paragraph cited by McClellan as the basis for his demand for "supporting evidence."

Two key factors are behind this challenging demand: (1) Long-standing congressional resentment at executive agencies for refusing to turn over records and files; and (2) the McClellan committee is preparing an interim report.

Like most fishing stories, a yarn that reached this typewriter last week was more than slightly twisted by the time it was published within these confines. The tale was the one dealing with the fishing excursion to Canada by Charley Gordon, Alfred W. Munson, Earl F. Groner and Pete Walsh.

Our original story, as passed on to us, had Gordon plunging into the icy waters of Lake Ontario.

Actually one of the other members of the group slipped into the water while assisting in launching the boat from the dock.

I'm not mentioning the name of the man who actually took the spill. But, maybe a little hint would be in order. He's principal of Stroudsburg High School.

Dr. Evan C. Reese, Dr. Harold S. Pond, Dr. Edward T. Horn and Dr. Lincoln Kutsher are all in training as reservists at Indian town Gap.

The Court ruled "Foglia di Via" "Admonition" and "Confinio" unconstitutional. "Foglia di Via" means that coppers can say to a guy, "We don't want you in town—scram." If he doesn't, he gets three months in the clink. That's why Joe Adonis was buried in tiny Frascati, now he can go to Rome. Lucky got "Admonition," which meant he had to be in the house after sundown, now he's free to run around as he pleases. "Confinio" is actually exile—to a small island or overseas colony. Supper in the backyard with the man of the house presiding at the charcoal grill with long-handled tongs to turn the steak—the green quilt broken by the regular Monday night fireman's drill with the siren setting all the neighborhood dogs to parking in individual keys—

That was one of the typical activities which Miss Arla Joro of Helsinki, Finland, experienced in her first day in the Stroudsburgs as the guest of the Stroudsburg Woman's Club.

"To become acquainted with the life and living conditions in the United States, to improve my knowledge of the American language and to be able to share these experiences with my people . . . these were some of the aims set forth by Miss Joro in her application to the International Research Fund which sponsors the American summer programs for students.

These aims seem quite likely to be realized since Miss Joro is to be the guest in a series of local homes during her two-month stay in the Stroudsburgs, and each hostess is considering what she might enjoy most.

All clubwomen of the county are invited to share in meeting with Miss Joro at a coffee to be held Wednesday, July 25, at 10 a. m. at the Stroud Community House. Arranged by Mrs. William Hannas, the coffee is under the direction of Mrs. Eugene Martin, who is being assisted by Mrs. Nelson Beers, Mrs. Oscar Liljenstein, Mrs. Parke Kunkle, Mrs. Edward Hess, Mrs. Harold Ingraham, Mrs. Evan Reese, Mrs. David Shiffer.

Originally Miss Joro was scheduled to arrive in the Stroudsburgs by bus on Sunday, but with the other 68 visiting students who arrived on Saturday by plane from Amsterdam had been kept in New York an extra day. They took the ferry around Manhattan and visited the United Nations before scattering to all sections of the United States.

Miss Joro arrived at 2:15 yesterday and was met by her first hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Ben I. Fansler, 729 Sarah St., Stroudsburg.

At the Fansler's, Miss Joro last night had an opportunity to meet some of her future hosts at the informal supper in the back yard.

Although Miss Joro in her application said modestly that she spoke English only "fairly well," since French is her best language and Swedish and German next, the English she speaks proved more than adequate, not only in understanding but in being understood, since she has only a trace of an accent.

Since she is available to speak to any local clubs who may wish to arrange a program, this is a decided advantage. She has an interesting story to tell. She was born in the southeastern Finland on the Karelian Isthmus, which Finland was forced to cede to the Soviet Union in the peace treaty at the end of the war. Her parents owned both urban and rural property which they lost at the border on the eastern side of the border.

Just Between Us

—by Bobby Westbrook

Just when the typewriter was well-grooved in writing descriptions of wedding gowns for a solid month—glibly rattling off portrait necklines, bouffant skirts, fingertip veils and embroidery of iridescent sequins and seed pearls—it is suddenly called upon to describe the indescribable—people.

Sunday night it was Mrs. Harms holding court in a pup-tent, and having the time of her life because she was meeting "such interesting people."

Yesterday afternoon it was Arla Mirjam Orvokki Joro, to give her her full name, newly arrived from Finland, and somehow making everyone she met see their own familiar surroundings with fresh eyes and a mint-new interest.

That is one of the great advantages of having guests, particularly from another country. Things you take for granted are suddenly illuminated as by a searchlight. Surely, the dogs don't always bark in chromatic scale to the tune set by the fire siren on Monday nights. The bees don't always chase the neighbor down from his painting the garage across the alley. Charcoal steak doesn't always smell like that.

And now tomorrow we'll be seeing the familiar figure of Randy in the unfamiliar role of Iago in "Othello." Many more of these days, and we'll need not only English, but some of Miss Joro's French, German, Swedish and Finnish to do justice to anything.

Take-it-easy cooks who are having company will find a cooked round boneless ham a good choice. Such a ham, weighing about six pounds should be heated in a slow (325 degrees) oven for about two hours. For a buffet supper serve the ham with Creamed potatoes, a raw vegetable salad and condiments such as mustard and pickle relish.

Blueberry Shortcake Time Brings Hints For New Uses

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press Food Editor

Blueberry shortcake, made of rounds of rich pastry, has gained favor at our house.

Use your own favorite recipe for flaky pastry; a large cookie cutter will cut out the rounds for the Blueberry Shortcake nicely. The cutter we used was one we improvised: we saved a can (12 ounces) from whole-kernel corn, cutting off both ends with a wall-type can opener so they would be smooth. This gives a cutter 3 1/4 inches in diameter that works beautifully.

BLUEBERRY SHORTCAKE

Ingredients: 1 cup heavy cream, sugar, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 16 rounds (3 to 4 inches in diameter) baked flaky pastry, 1 pint basket cultivated blueberries (washed and well drained).

Method: Beat cream until almost stiff; add sugar to taste and vanilla; beat until sugar is combined and cream is just stiff; do not overbeat. Reserve a few dozen of the largest blueberries for garnishing; fold the remaining blueberries into the cream. Arrange 8 of the baked pastry rounds on individual plates or a serving platter. Spoon about two-thirds of the blueberry-cream onto the rounds; place remaining pastry rounds over the cream. Top with remaining blueberry-cream and reserved berries. Serve at once. Makes 8 servings.

USING BLUEBERRIES

Next time you bake blueberry muffins, try adding a teaspoon of grated lemon rind to the batter. Or after you have spooned the blueberry muffin batter into the wells of the baking pan, sprinkle it with a tablespoon of sugar mixed with a teaspoon of grated lemon rind.

Fall Hats Are 'The Most' In Early Fashion Showing

By Dorothy Roe
Associated Press Women's Editor

A man dragged protestingly by his wife to view the recent gala dinner showing of fall hats staged by the New York millinery industry stared goggle-eyed as the sumptuous concoctions passed in review and then gasped:

"They're the most!"

"That's as good a way as any to describe the new hat styles for fall. They're big, bold and beautiful. They're fabulous. They're elegant. They're elaborate. They're lavish with fur, jewels and feathers. And you can see them a block away."

When a woman wears her new hat this fall, the world will know it. There's nothing modest or understated about the new toppers. They provide drama at the top, a dashing accent for slender dress and suit fashions.

Some are tall and some are wide, but all have bulk in one direction or the other. They are worn to be seen—and what else should be the purpose of an elegant hat?

Women who have found the big hats of summer hard to wear will be relieved to know that the new winter crop is more flattering, easier for the average woman to wear. The reason is that most of the new hats are worn slightly farther back, to show the edge of the hairline. This avoids the sometimes difficult mushroom look, or the need for a seeing-eye dog.

Fur hats are high in fashion importance for the new season, and some of the top-bracket milliners have found a way to put fabulous-looking furs within reach of the medium budget. Often the hats are accompanied by king-size muffs, to be worn with untrimmed coats and suits.

Ostrich plumes and all kinds of feathers are back with a bang. Big picture hats of velvet will be worn for restaurant dining this winter, and elaborate headresses will be seen again with formal evening gowns.

Widows Form Band To Fight Common Pangs Of Loneliness

Detroit (U)—Any of these summer afternoons you may see a group of young women sitting on the sand at St. Clair Metropolitan Beach, looking like office workers with the afternoon off or a young mother's club on an outing.

But this group is different. The things they discuss deal mainly with how to maintain a home and raise a family without a husband. They are young widows who have banded together to fight loneliness and fight their common problems in an organization unique in the United States.

At present there are 10 members, headed by Mrs. Roland Bright, who for six years has faced the problems of bringing up a family and maintaining a normal home after the death of her husband. One day she hit on the idea of joining forces with other young widows in similar circumstances, and so the club was born. All of them, says Mrs. Bright, have found their greatest problem has been "the feeling that suddenly hits you when you are trying hardest—that nobody really cares."

The 10 women, all under 39, have 34 children among them. Mrs. Bright has three—Yvonne, 16, Gary, 14, and Loryn, 11. A widow since 1950, Mrs. Bright found that family and friends often do not quite understand the special problems that face a young mother who must bring up a family alone. She felt self-conscious about accepting the invitations of couples who asked her to dinner parties and other functions, apparently out of sympathy. She was embarrassed by being the "extra woman" at every gathering. So she decided to seek out other women in the same predicament, and form a group to discuss and solve common problems.

At the first meeting, things were difficult. Says Mrs. Bright: "There were tears that first night. Now most of the girls can speak of their husbands quite naturally.

"A widow can't go out alone at night. None of us are the kind who would sit around a restaurant alone. But we can get together and do things."

"The girl who would never think of taking golf lessons alone is eager to go if there are others in the group. And she knows no one will criticize her for trying to be happy."

Other members of the group include: Mrs. John Raspet, widow of an Air Force captain who died in an air crash, and mother of three young sons; Mrs. James A. White, a full-time nurse, widow of a local high school principal and mother of three girls; Mrs. Leon DeBusschere, mother of two boys and two girls; Mrs. Bernard DeStross, mother of three daughters; Mrs. Bonnie Friday, whose baby daughter was born two weeks after her husband was killed in an automobile accident; Mrs. Arnold Bettishill, mother of a boy and a girl; Mrs. Charles H. Miller, Jr., mother of four children; Mrs. Elmer Mittelstedt, mother of two, and Mrs. Herschel Gilbert, mother of four boys.

"Sometimes all we do for each other is sit and have a cup of coffee and chat," says Mrs. Bright. "But it makes all the difference in the world."

Dingmans Woman Hostess To Reporter

doesn't leak," she said when asked how she managed during two long days of cold rain.

"I'm having the time of my life," she insisted. "Some of my ancestors went to California in a covered wagon, and I guess it's in my blood."

But wasn't she afraid? she was asked.

"Not with this," she said, confidently flourishing a policeman's night-stick. It had belonged to her father, who, as a policeman, had singlehandedly rounded up a gang of counterfeiters, she recalled.

Besides she has patrolled the roads every winter for the last four years with only a golf club for protection, she said. And this, in part, is why she is sticking it out amid the jumble of her belongings instead of giving in and accepting the hospitality of friends. She feels she has a cause and is going to fight for it.

Her explanation is that when summer residents complained of a series of petty thefts after a winter when their houses had been closed, she had voluntarily patrolled the road every day all winter long, checking the closed homes to see if they were all right.

Feeling that she had earned exoneration of taxes through this public service she had written a letter to the sheriff of Pike County, now deceased, suggesting that he use some of his salary to pay her taxes, since she was doing his work.

Whether or not he would have agreed to her proposition is immaterial now since he died. The house was sold for $200 taxes, and with the two and a half years of grace now up, its owner ordered her eviction.

It was with the golf club in her hand that she tried to forestall the sheriff and his deputies when they had come to evict her.

She had been upstairs reading a "Perry Mason" detective story, she recalled, when the evicting force had arrived to be met at the head of the stairs by Mrs. Harris and her golf club.

However, in the long run the furniture was moved out, despite her objections. The furniture she hopes to have carted away and stored out of the weather, but she herself plans to stick it out.

She has hopes that the matter will be settled and she can move back into the home she has occupied for 23 years. She feels she has the support of the people of the county.

"You know I was chairman of the Pike County Republican Committee for years," she said, "and they wanted me to run for sheriff. The college group was back of me, because I've taken courses at Columbia and they felt I'd be good."

"I have many friends who are backing me," and she added with a chuckle, "and I'm making a lot of new friends right here. Why this afternoon I had seven carloads of visitors. Some of them I didn't even know, but they all told me, 'We're back of you, Hazel, stick it out.'"

Any animal visitors? she was asked.

"Only Kilroy, the gray squirrel, but he's an old friend. But I love company, all kinds of company. Anytime you're up this way again, do stop in at least for a cup of coffee," she concluded the interview as graciously as it had begun.

Greene-Dreher-Sterling Fair Plans Advance

NEWFOUNDLAND—Plans for revival of the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Fair, one of Pennsylvania's oldest community agricultural exhibitions, are progressing satisfactorily, Carroll Fetherman, president of the association, reports.

Scheduled for August 23, 24 and 25, the fair will be making its 39th showing. It ran 38 consecutive years before being suspended for one year following the 1954 event.

Most of the damage caused to fair association property and equipment has been repaired, Fetherman said. A new building, which will house refreshment facilities and other fair activities, has been contracted for and will be finished by mid-August, he added.

Entertainment
The usual entertainment features will again be presented during the three-day stand and a tractor-driving contest has been added to the schedule of events. The latter will be staged on Saturday afternoon, August 25.

The Greene-Dreher Old Folks association—a group of area octogenarians—and all area golden wedding couples will be guests of the association at dinner on Saturday. This annual get-together of old-timers was last held in 1954.

A number of local civic and fraternal groups are cooperating with the association in its effort to revive the fair. These include the Rotary Club, Post No. 859, American Legion and its Auxiliary, the Greene-Dreher Volunteer Fire Company, the Woman's Club, the Future Farmers of America, the Boy Scouts and Explorers, the Rebekah Lodge, the Order of Eastern Star and the Sterling Grange.

HOME FREEZING BIG STEP TOWARD LEISURE LIVING

Modern science has really hit the bulls' eye in better living appliances with the electric home freezer. Its development was one of the big steps forward in freeing women from day-long house-hold drudgery.

Better family living is what interests most of us—and few appliances contribute more to it than this wonderful time, labor and money-saver—the home freezer. Not only does it preserve food, but it keeps flavor, color and all-around goodness intact in a sort of frozen suspension. If you've ever longed for a taste of that delicious trout just as you catch them in the summer or fresh-from-the-garden corn or peas—the home freezer can be the answer to your dreams.

REDUCES TIME, WORK

The home freezer frees today's busy homemaker from that daily grind of three-times-a-day food preparation, and frequent food shopping. She can put her meals on a modern production line basis.

With an electric food freezer, she can prepare meals in advance—ready for cooking or already cooked—and keep them until she needs them, in the freezer. Meal-time arrives and she can pop the food into her oven and have it ready to serve in minutes. This way, it is possible to serve delicious, healthful meals in half the time formerly required.

Cookies, cakes, pastries, the children's lunches—all can be prepared in advance and frozen—ready when needed. And, the modern homemaker cuts her food shopping trips by buying in quantities when prices are low, freezing them for future use.

Helps vary menus.

No longer do family meals have to get monotonous. Meals, prepared in advance and frozen are ready for eating when the family desires. Favorite family dishes may be prepared in large quantities, packaged, frozen and stored in amounts for individual meals.

Vary the lunches you may have to pack for your husband or the school children, with frozen sandwiches, cupcakes, cookies or other favorites packaged in quantities small enough for individual servings.

And, leftovers need not be wasted. You can eliminate the monotony of eating them day after day until they are finished by freezing them, keeping them for weeks, then serving when enough time has passed to make them something of a novelty again.

PROVIDES MORE LEISURE TIME

Leisure time—time to do other work around the house, time to play with the children, time to participate in community affairs of club work, time to sit and talk or read or rest, time that we all require and like very much—is the precious gift of the home freezer.

The food freezer means the homemaker can prepare many a meal in just minutes that once took hours. It frees her from frequent food shopping, meal planning and preparation. It is an investment in better living for every family. Adv.

A BUSY FOOD FREEZER PAYS OFF IN ECONOMY

To get the best returns on the investment in a home freezer, it should be used as much as possible. That is, a rapid turnover of food in the freezer makes for the greatest savings. Many folks find this a difficult lesson to learn for they think of "saving" food instead of "storing" it. Actually, food is "saved" by "storing" it in the freezer but quantities should not be built beyond your needs for a reasonable length of time. That is, two, three or six months. Otherwise, you begin to build a backlog of food that is merely taking up space while representing a good-sized investment in unused assets.

But keep the freezer busy and it will prove a thrifty companion. Here are some tips on how to accomplish this:

1. Follow a freezing schedule, based on a food production plan that meets the need of the family and which is planned with a view towards providing for extraordinary uses, such as unexpected guests, dinner parties or unusual weather that keeps you indoors.

2. When you buy food for freezing, buy it cheaper in large quantities at the height of the season; 3. If the family sells poultry or produce, the home freezer can be a real help in increasing profits. Poultry, for example, can be frozen and stored until the market prices are more favorable;

4. Keep your eye on freezer food specials at your local market. As in all food buying you can profit by bargain-hunting and the beauty of freezer food buying is that you can buy more of such bargains than when spoilage is a factor.

5. Check upon complete dinners and other unusual buys that are available at your frozen food counters. They often can represent an economy.

How economical a freezer can be depends largely on whether food is home-grown or purchased, the kinds and quantities frozen, and how the freezer is used. It is obvious that it does not pay to freeze foods commonly available and relatively inexpensive at all seasons.

For many families the economies of home freezing are rated less important than the time-saving benefits in shopping for food and preparing meals and the satisfaction of enjoying a variety of fresh-flavored foods of high nutritive value the year 'round. Adv.

Freezing Prevents Food Spoilage

Freezing helps prevent food spoilage caused by the action of micro-organisms and enzymes.

FOOD SPOILERS EXPLAINED

Microorganisms are external agents, such as bacteria, yeasts and molds which attack food from the outside. As they are living organisms they must eat—which is the reason that they attack food. They grow and multiply rapidly and their action on food causes physical changes which lead quickly to spoilage.

Enzymes are internal agents which break down tissues. They are chemical substances inside food which cause some desirable changes such as the aging of beef and the ripening of green pears and bananas. However, if enzymatic action is allowed to continue it causes overripeness. Undesirable forms of enzymatic action are browning or darkening of color as well as the breaking down of tissues.

RETARDING SPOILAGE

Since microorganisms and enzymes cause most food spoilage, the chief object of food preservation of any kind is to retard their action.

Freezing stops the physical action microorganisms. The sub-freezing temperatures in a freezer completely check the physical action of microorganisms. The sub-zero, as soon as the food is thawed bacteria may multiply rapidly.

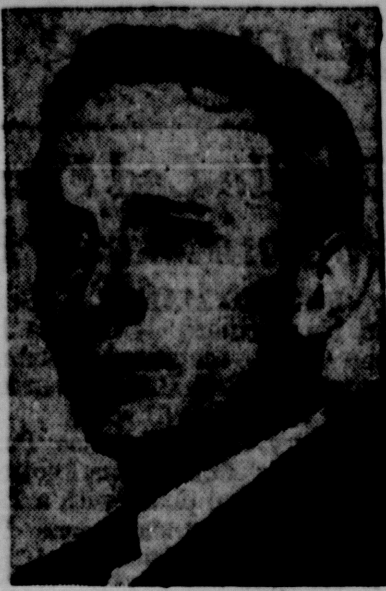

The chemical action of enzymes is slowed down by food freezing. In most foods, freezing slows down this enzymatic action so that foods can be safely stored at recommended temperatures. However, this chemical action continues at a rate harmful to color, flavor and vitamin content of vegetables, unless it is checked by blanching or scalding the vegetables before freezing.

"ZERO" BEST TEMPERATURE
Laboratory tests show zero degrees Fahrenheit to be the most favorable temperature for long-term frozen food storage to best retain color, flavor and good eating qualities.

Dingmans Girl Shoots Rattle Snake

DINGMANS PERRY — Miss Joyce Reser recently proved her marksmanship when she shot a 40-inch rattler in front of her home.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Reser of Child's Park, she and her brother Billy were playing ball in their yard. The ball rolled out onto the road and the children ran to retrieve it.

10th Mark

As they neared the ball, they saw the large snake coiled nearby. Joyce ran to the house for their 22 rifle and at the second shot hit the rattler square in the neck. It was killed after a last loud outburst of rattles.

The reptile brandished ten rattles.

Sore Symptoms of Low HOUSEPOWER

If fuses blow or circuit-breakers trip often, that's one of the symptoms of low HOUSEPOWER. Low HOUSEPOWER means insufficient wiring to bring in the electricity necessary to operate lights and appliances at full capacity. Your appliances do not get enough current to do their job well; your home is less-than-efficient for today's living. Check these points to see if low HOUSEPOWER is denying you the benefits of the modern, work-saving appliances you deserve.

Quick Facts About HOUSEPOWER

Today, the average home uses 3 times as much electricity as it did 15 years ago. That's why 4 out of 5 homes now suffer from low HOUSEPOWER. This is true even of brand new homes. Here are the conditions that cause you to have low HOUSEPOWER:

1. INADEQUATE ELECTRICAL SERVICE ENTRANCE. To overcome this basic cause of low HOUSEPOWER, you should have service entrance capacity of at least 100 amperes. This requires 3-wire service from the street.

2. OVERLOADED CIRCUITS. Too many appliances on one circuit overload it and none of them get enough power. Motors may even burn out. If the overload is too great, the fuse will blow or circuit-breaker trip. You should have enough branch circuits to distribute enough electricity to all appliances.

3. INSUFFICIENT OUTLETS. Some homeowners use extension cords and "octopus" outlets (2- and 3-way plugs), or plug into lighting outlets. Such practices are unsightly, inconvenient, and may be dangerous. Rearranging furniture doesn't help. The only safe solution is to add more circuits and outlets.

These are the symptoms of low HOUSEPOWER: lights dimming when appliances are turned on; blown fuses or tripped circuit-breakers; TV picture shrinking when other appliances are turned on; appliances working inefficiently or taking too long to heat up.

If any of these symptoms are present in your home call your electric company, electrician or electrical contractor for a wiring check-up. If added wiring is necessary, your electrician or electrical contractor will do the job quickly, neatly, economically. It often takes less than a day. Remember, full HOUSEPOWER increases the value of your home.

Mantle Hopes To Become 3-Title Victor

NEW YORK, July 23 (AP)—Mighty Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankees' switch-hitting outfielder, hopes to become the American League's first triple crown winner since Boston's Ted Williams in 1947.

Mantle stands an excellent chance. He currently leads the league in batting with .371, home runs with 32 and runs batted in with 82. The 24-year-old slugger also has scored the most runs, 80, and has collected the most hits, 117, through games of Sunday.

Since 1920, when runs batted in were first officially tabulated, only three players have captured the triple crown in the junior circuit. Jimmy Fox did it with the A's in 1893, Lou Gehrig of the Yankees duplicated in 1934. Williams did it in 1942 and then repeated in 1947.

Mantle homered twice last week and drove in eight runs while lifting his batting average 6 points on 10 hits in 22 at bats. He picked up ground, in the batting race on runner-up Charley Maxwell of Detroit, who remains second at .352. Maxwell's average failed to change as he went 6-for-28.

The Tigers' Harvey Kuenn still is third at .346, despite a 3-point drop.

In the National League batting race, Cincinnati's Ed Bailey has displaced Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals as the pacesetter. Bailey boosted his average 18 points to .344 as Milwaukee's Hank Aaron moved in second, ahead of Musial, with .336. Stan's third at .334.

Bailey, as second a week ago, delivered 12 hits in 25 at bats. Aaron gained 17 points on 15-for-36 in moving up from a fourth-place tie. Musial went 11-for-26 and hiked his average 7 points.

Repairs Made To Roads In Pike County

NEWFOUNDLAND — Much needed repairs have been made to the Newfoundland — Promised Land road, officials of Greene Township civic groups have announced.

Although temporary in nature, the work has eliminated many of the hazardous sections in the road, a spokesman stated. These include spots eroded in the August flood and others resulting from the heavy traffic of Spring and early Summer.

Negotiate

The groups, the Greene Township Civic association and the Promised Land Civic association, stated that they will continue to negotiate for further repairs, including work on the edges of the pavement and the shoulder, and for the eventual reconstruction of the heavily-travelled stretch.

Assistance of local merchants and Newfoundland civic organization is being solicited by the Pike County groups in their effort to get approval for a new road.
